This week was the week that we were working on our final prototype of our design. The team met in Abdalaziz's apartment so we can build our prototype. We have generated a rough prototype that were shown to our client which means it have helped as to start building our final one. We then moved forward to purchase some cardboards in order to make our prototype. The team have discussed some of the features and functions of the design while doing its prototype. Truly, the prototypes helped us imaging how our design will be in the future.
